Chapter 1

Introduction

There is a general feeling that the globalization and liberalization had affected the agriculture sector adversely. Increase in cost of production and lesser income received by the cultivators has led the agricultural sector to a severe crisis. There is a wide difference between the price received by the cultivators and the price given by the consumers for the agriculture products. Profit is spread among the wholesalers, retailers and agents. In the case of many agricultural products the cultivators get only around 50% of the price paid by the consumers. Deliberate attempt is needed to reduce the difference between the consumption price and price received by the cultivators. A detailed survey is needed to collect the data in respect of this sector and the analysis of data will be helpful for preparing projects to assist cultivators.

The State Agricultural Prices Board has proposed a 'Study on Price Spread' of major agricultural produces especially of Coconut and Banana (Nenthran) and suggested to prepare a detailed scheme of the study. A sample survey in Thiruvananthapuram district is proposed as a pilot project to assess the feasibility of a detailed study all over the state.

1.1 Objectives

1. To analyse the price spread of coconut and banana through a pilot study in Thiruvananthapuram district.
2. To study the cost of production, quantity produced, income and the role of markets relating to the above crops.
3. Using these data prepare suitable projects to assist the cultivators.

1.2 Methodology

Prepared a list of coconut and banana cultivators included in the clusters of EARAS survey in 2006-07 in the four Taluks of Thiruvananthapuram district. The cultivators listed were then stratified into small, medium and large (Details in table) according to the area of cultivation and selected 50 cultivators from each strata of each crop randomly. (It was decided to select the cultivators having coconut trees with in the age group of 15 to 50 years. Number of cultivators selected from each taluk is proportional to the total number of cultivators listed in the taluk.

Crop	Small	Medium	Large
Coconut	Below 25 cents	25-50 cents	Above 50 cents
Banana	Below 25 cents	25-50 cents	Above 50 cents

The enumerators have visited each coconut cultivator once in two months and the details thus collected has been recorded in the schedules (Form1) designed for this purpose. The area of cultivation (including number of trees), cost of cultivation, total production, price of produces, income received and the details about the efforts of cultivators were collected from the selected coconut cultivators.

The enumerators have visited banana cultivators once in three months during the survey period and the details thus collected have been recorded in the schedules designed (Form 3) for this purpose. The area of cultivation (including number of plants), cost of production, total production, price of produces, income received and the other details about the efforts of cultivators were collected from the selected banana cultivators.

In each taluk, three market centres are selected for the market study. From each centre five wholesale dealers, five retail dealers and five agents for each commodity (coconut and banana) has been selected. Besides these, 3 small-scale units producing value added products using these produce as raw materials were also selected for the study. The details of total commodities traded the price of buying and selling, incidental expenses etc were also collected by visiting these traders once in two months.

The fieldwork of the survey entrusted with the field staff of the Department of Economics and Statistics. The Deputy Director, Research Officer and Taluk level officers were assigned with supervision of this survey.

1.3 Period of the Survey

The survey was conducted during the agriculture year 2008-09. The fieldwork of the survey started by July 2008 and completed by June 2009.

1.4 Processing of data

The schedules have been coded and computerized in the Directorate of Economics and Statistics. Preparation of software, data validation, table generation and preparation of report have been done in the Directorate of Economics and Statistics.

Chapter 2

Price Spread study of Coconut

The survey aimed to study the price spread of coconut and banana that are very common agricultural products in the district. The objective of this report is to present the overall features of the study and to release the data in the form of tables generated by the department, based on the study. Hundreds of tables are appended with this report that are useful for different analysis as per the need of agriculturists and researchers in the agricultural field. It is not possible to include detailed analyses, in all directions with these hundreds of tables in a single report. These analyses are to be done separately as per the requirement of eminent in the agricultural field. So this report do not attempt any detailed analysis, however present the data that are ready to analyse. In this chapter the price spread of coconut is analyzed.

2.1 Details of Coconut Cultivators

2.1.1 Number of cultivators and Area of cultivation

The cultivators selected for the study are divided into three groups, according to their area of cultivation, namely 'Small' (having less than 25 cents of coconut cultivation), 'Medium' (having 25-50 cents of coconut cultivation) and 'Large' (having more than 50 cents of coconut cultivation). The details on number of cultivators from each taluk, in three different categories are given in table 1. The agricultural land is also divided into wetland and dry land according to its nature. The numbers of farmers selected for the study, in each Taluk are given below.

Table 1- Number of Coconut cultivators surveyed in each taluk

Sl No	Taluk	Small	Medium	Large	Total
1	Chirayinkeezhu	14	8	12	34
2	Nedumangad	13	11	16	40
3	Neyyattinkara	12	17	12	41

Table 2- Area of Cultivation

Thiruvananthapuram	940	1416	2455	845	948	2355	89.89	66.95	95.93
Total	3015	5174	14692	2721	4123	13063	90.25	79.69	88.91

Area of land given above includes dry and wetland, and also land owned and leased by the cultivators. The large-scale cultivators are not using leased land for the cultivation. In the case of small and medium cultivators, about 5% of the land cultivated is leased land. From the above table, it is clear that the cultivators utilize, in an average more than 80% of the cultivatable land for cultivation.

2.1.2 Coconut Cultivation

The farmers selected for the study are being cultivated different types of coconut trees including HYV (High yield variety) in wet and dry lands (irrigated or unirrigated). The cultivators of the sample are cultivating 8632 trees in an area of 9260 cents. Among these trees, only 3.56% of the trees are of HYV. The small-scale cultivators are not cultivating HYV trees. 79.25% of the cultivated land is unirrigated and 88.42% of the total area is dry land. More details are furnished in the following table.

Table3- Number of trees cultivated

Type of cultivators	Number of trees
	Irrigated	Un irrigated	Total
Small	143	760	903
Medium	503	1238	1741
Large	1630	4358	5988
Total	2276	6356	8632

2.1.3 Expenditure

To get regular and proper yield from the trees, the cultivators have to spend comparatively a good amount on fertilizer, manures, pesticides, wages, irrigation expenses, rent/lease of land etc. In the last agricultural year (July 2008 to June 2009) the selected farmers have spent an amount of 6.27 lakhs as the expenditure for farming. In this expense, 55.08% have been utilized for wages. The value of their own effort is 4.34%.

The above expenditure excludes the expenditure on harvesting such as wages for harvesting, de-husking, loading and unloading, commission charges etc. In the last agricultural year cultivators have spent 5.15 lakh of Rupees in this category. The month wise expenditure of the cultivators is furnished in the following table.

2.1.4 Production

The selected farmers in the sample are harvesting two types of coconuts viz., Ripe and Tender. But the production of tender coconuts is comparatively small. More than 90% of the tender coconuts are harvesting from Thiruvananthapuram Taluk.

The selected cultivators have harvested about 3.7 lakhs of ripe coconuts in the agricultural year from July 2008 to June 2009, while the production of tender coconuts is about 40 thousands. Production according to type, month wise productions etc are furnished in the following tables.

Table 5-Production according to Coconut type

June	36542	6738	43280
Total	371213	49036	420249

From the above details of production and expenditure, it can observe that the average expenditure per coconut is Rs 2.72 (small- Rs 2.89, medium- Rs 2.95 and large- Rs 2.62).

2.1.5 Sales

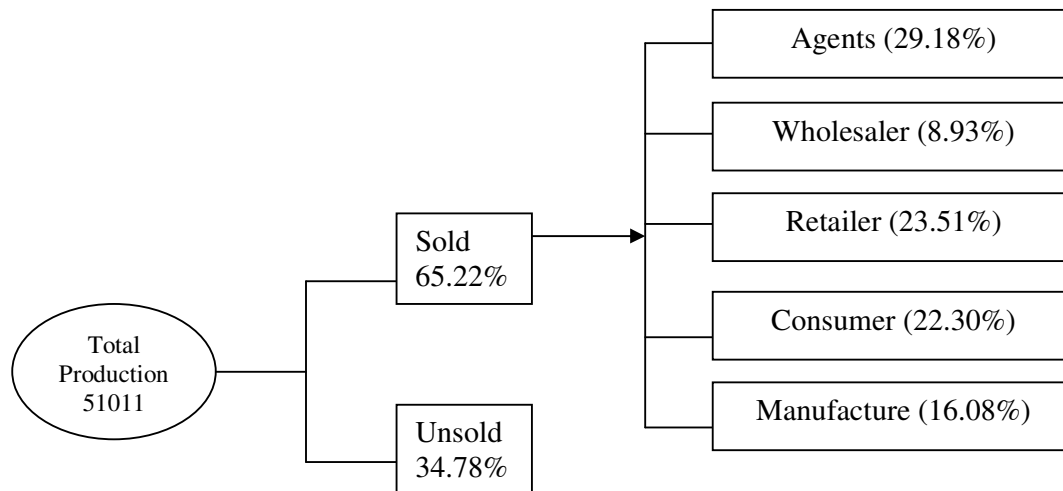

(a) Sales in numbers

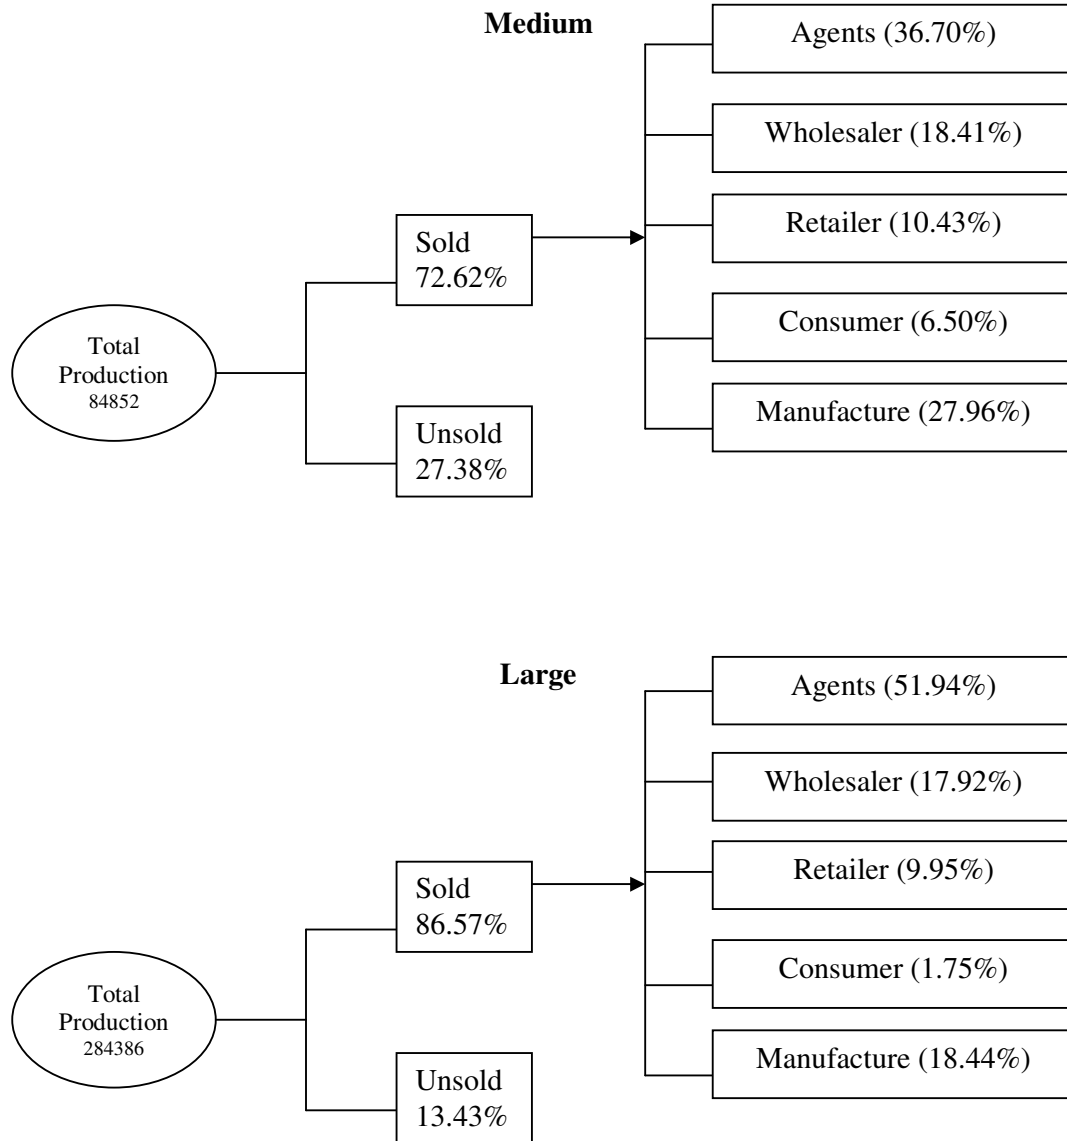

The cultivators sold the harvested coconuts to different agencies like agents, wholesalers, retailers etc and consumers directly. There are variations in the prices of coconuts while handover from one hand to another. In each transfer of the commodity, some value is added to the price, causing a significant difference between the prices of coconut that the consumers pay and the cultivators receive. The relevance of this Price Spread Survey is to find out magnitude of the said difference and to identify the ways that lead to the spread of price of the commodity.

The following diagrams give the selling pattern of the coconuts to different agencies in the last agricultural year.

Figure 1

Small

The small-scale cultivators have sold only 65.22% percentage of the harvested coconuts, while the medium and large scale cultivators have sold 72.62% and 86.57% of the coconuts respectively. Small, medium and large-scale cultivators gave first preference to agents to sell the coconuts. In the case of medium and large-scale cultivators, the percentage of coconut sold to consumers directly is small. The small-scale cultivators have sold 22.30% of the coconuts to the consumers directly.

(b) Sales in Rupees

In the last agricultural year the small, medium and large scale cultivators in the sample sold coconuts for 1.82lakh, 3.18 lakh and 13.36 lakh respectively. It is noted that the medium scale cultivators have not sold tender coconuts, and the small-scale cultivators have sold for a little amount of rupees. In the case of large-scale cultivators, 22.60% of the value of sale was from Tender coconuts. The cultivators had a little income from husk, which amount to about 5 thousands.

For the analysis of price spread of the coconut, the price on one coconut received by the cultivators from different agencies is essential; these details are furnished in the following table.

The average price on one coconut is higher for large-scale cultivators. The data indicates that cultivators get better prices when the coconuts are selling to consumer directly and the cultivators receive comparatively small price when the coconuts are selling to wholesalers. The maximum absolute deviations of the prices from the average are 37 paise for small-scale cultivators, 55 paise for medium scale cultivators and 50 paise for large-scale cultivators. That is, the price variation is minimum for small-scale cultivators. The cultivators sold tender coconuts only to agents or wholesalers.

4	Thiruvananthapuram	8	15	17	9	49
	Total	43	60	61	36	200

Beside cultivators, some traders of coconut have been selected for the survey to study the price spread arising from their part. The traders belong to any one of the categories viz., agent, wholesaler, retailer and manufacturer. Manufacturer is one who produces coconut related products like coconut oil. The particulars of purchase and sale of the commodity, and the incidental expenditure arose in the transferring of coconuts are studied. The number of traders selected from each category is shown in the table above.

2.2.1 Purchasing patterns

The traders purchase coconut from cultivators directly and also from different agencies. In the last agricultural year, the selected traders have purchased about 1.55 crore of coconuts as the part of their business. From table 9 the traders have purchased 77.23% of the coconuts from cultivators directly. It is interesting to note that agents purchased 7.79% of coconuts from other agents, which causes price variation among the agents itself. The percentage of purchased coconuts from different agencies by different categories of traders is furnished in the following table. It is also to be noted that the traders have not purchased tender coconuts in the last agricultural year.

Table 9 Percentage of number of coconuts purchased from different agencies

Type of Trader	Percentage of coconuts purchased from
	Cultivator	Agent	Wholesaler	Retailer	Others
Agent	92.21	7.79	0.00	0.00	0.00
Wholesaler	87.90	11.69	0.00	0.00	0.40
Retailer	65.94	14.70	18.99	0.28	0.09
Manufacturer	56.68	18.97	17.19	0.00	7.16
Average	77.23	13.35	6.93	0.02	2.48

The purchasing price per coconut varies for different agencies, and the price depends on the agency, from which the coconut is processing. In table 10 average price of one coconut purchasing from different agencies are furnished; from the table we can observe a price variation even among the traders. For example, an agent purchased a coconut from different agencies for an average price of Rs. 4.97, but the different agencies purchased a coconut from the agents for an average price of Rs 5.35.

Table- 10 Price per one coconut purchased from different agencies

Purchased by	Price per one coconut purchased from					Average
	Cultivator	Agent	Wholesaler	Retailer	Other

Average	5.10	5.35	5.53	5.71	4.73	5.16

2.2.2 Incidental Expenditure

While processing or transferring of the coconuts, the traders have to spend some amount as incidental expenditure in different categories like salary and wages, transportation, rent, electricity, tax/ license fee etc. In the last agricultural year, the selected traders had an incidental expenditure of about Rs.1.05 crore. Major part of this amount belongs to the categories of salary and wages, transportation and the value of the own efforts of the traders. Trader wise incidental expenditure is given below.

Agent	– 14.80 lakhs
Wholesaler	– 29 lakhs
Retailer	– 7.1 lakhs
Manufacturer	– 54.35 laks

2.2.3 Sales

The agencies sell the coconuts to different agencies or consumers directly. The agencies have sold 66.44% of the coconuts they purchased. This difference in the percentage is because; the percentage of selling by the manufacturers was only 1.08%. Agents, wholesalers and retailers have sold respectively 99.84%, 96.79% and 95.84% of the coconuts they purchased. These agencies have sold majority of the coconuts to manufacturers. The table given below gives the percentages of selling coconuts to different agencies.

Table 11- Percentage of number of coconuts sold to different agencies

Type of Trader	Percentage of coconuts sold to
	Agent	Wholesaler	Retailer	Consumer	Manufacturer
Agent	1.62	26.57	22.55	5.44	43.83

Table 12- Price of one coconut sold to different agencies

Type of Trader	Price per one coconut sold to					Average
	Agent	Wholesaler	Retailer	Consumer	Manufacturer
Agent	5.37	5.19	5.75	5.64	5.54	5.50
Wholesaler	-	6.09	6.03	6.14	5.83	6.02
Retailer	-	-	5.68	6.57	5.50	5.92
Manufacturer	-	-	-	6.38	-	6.38
Average	5.37	5.20	5.88	6.30	5.75

In table 12, the average price on one coconut those sold to different agencies by different traders are presented. It can observe that the average price on coconut is higher for manufacturer and the traders received higher price from consumers. When consider a consumer, he bought a coconut from an agent for Rs 5.64 while for Rs 6.57 from a retailer. But the agents sold only 14.26% of coconuts to consumer directly.

Besides the above income from the coconuts, the traders had an extra income from the husk; the average income from husk per one coconut is Rs 2.15. It is noted that 94.74% of the total income from husk distributed to wholesalers and manufactures and 80% of the total income from husk goes to manufacturer's hand. This is an extra income from one coconut besides the usual profit from one coconut.

Now we can analyse the spread of price of one coconut by considering the different possibilities of transferring. For example, consider the following possible chains of transfer of coconut.

In the first line the chain, in the second line the selling prices, in the third line the profit in each transfer and in the fourth line the overall price variation on one coconut are given.

Chain 1
Cultivator----	Agent----	Wholesaler----	Retailer----	Consumer
4.94	5.19		6.03	6.57
	0.25	0.84	0.54
<hr/>				1.63

Chain 2
Cultivator----	Wholesaler----	Retailer----	Consumer
5.22		6.03	6.57
	0.81	0.54
<hr/>			1.35

Chain 3
Cultivator----	Wholesaler----	Consumer
5.22		6.14
	0.92

In the above examples, in chain 1 there are four transfers that cause an overall variation of 1.63 rupees excluding the extra income from the husk. In the second chain one transfer is reduced by not considering the agent; here the variation reduces to 1.35 rupees and the cultivator get better price than in the first chain. In the third, the variation is only 0.92 rupee. From the above table, it can observe that the agents sold the coconuts to the consumer for an average price of rupees 5.64. Here the variation is comparatively low and price on one coconut that is to be paid by the consumers is low. From the above information and percentages given in the report, it can assume that chain 1 frequently happens.

Note that all the chains given above are assumptions and the variations are calculated based on the district wise figures. There may be other different possibilities of chains of transfer and the price spread may vary for different taluks or months or individuals. Price per nut tables given in the appendix may help for such analyses.

In the first part of the report, based on the information obtained from the cultivators, the average price per one coconut received is Rs 5.39 and the cost of coconut that the cultivators sold to consumers is Rs 5.84. From this two observations can be made in comparing with the data obtained from the traders.

1. From some agencies, other than the selected traders in the study, the cultivators receive better prices.
2. The consumer can buy coconuts from the cultivators directly for comparatively low prices, which reduces the price spread.

The selected traders for the study were not the main traders of tender coconuts. The number of tender coconuts in their business of last agricultural year was comparatively very small; hence the analysis of ripe and tender coconuts has not been carried out separately.

In the above discussions, the average prices of the agricultural year as a whole have been considered. These prices may vary when the taluk or month wise analysis is done. In the appendix of this chapter, taluk wise and month wise data on coconut cultivators and coconut traders are furnished, that are ready for generating different analytic measures related to the price spread analysis of coconut. Different types of analysis, in various directions, on different aspects of coconut cultivators and traders are also possible using these tables.

Details of Banana Cultivation

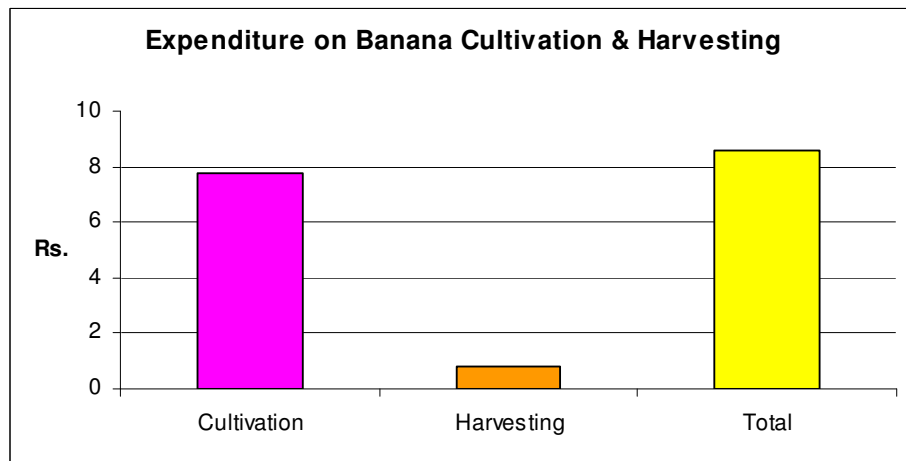

3.1 Banana Cultivators

3.1.1 Number of cultivators and Area of cultivation

The cultivators selected for the study are divided into three groups, according to their area of cultivation, namely 'Small' (having less than 25 cents of banana cultivation), 'Medium' (having 25-50 cents of banana cultivation) and 'Large' (having more than 50 cents of banana cultivation). The details on number of cultivators from each taluk, in three different categories are given in table 1. The agricultural land is also divided into wetland and dry land according to its nature. The numbers of farmers selected for the study, in each Taluk are given below.

Table 3.1- Number of Banana cultivators surveyed in each taluk

The survey on banana cultivation, conducted in Thiruvananthapuram district shows the actual expenditure and profit of banana cultivation. According to the survey plants harvested is 95.70% of total cultivated. Out of this 96.89% is marketed. 4.3% crop loss happened in the survey period due to different reason. Average production of banana is 7.45Kg /Plant and the average expenditure for the production of one bunch (7.45Kg) is Rs. 57.81. Expenditure for harvesting and allied works is Rs. 6.05/Plant. Average expenditure for cultivation and marketing of one bunch is Rs. 63.85/Plant (Rs. 8.58/Kg). According to the details collected on cultivation and marketing, the cultivators get an income of Rs. 14.98/Kg with an average profit of Rs. 6.41/Kg.

The total expenditure on cultivation shows that 7.25% is spent for seeds/ plants, 18.44% for fertilizer, 11.11% for manures, 1.32% for pesticides, 28.01% for wages, 1.42% for irrigation, 9.32% for rent/lease, 4.81% for the supporting stay and 1.84% for other expenses. Own effort contributes 16.47% of total expenditure.

When analyzing the expenditure on harvest and allied works 25.98% is spent for wages, 19.37% for transportation, 7.41% for loading and unloading, 0.59% for incidental expenses, 1.71% for commission to agents, 7.42% for other expenses and 37.52% for own effort.

The cultivators spent Rs.8.58 to produce 1 Kg of Banana in a period of about 10 months and they get Rs. 14.98/Kg as income with a profit of Rs. 6.41/Kg. The price of Banana is table and better in survey period and natural calamity and other type of crop loss not occurred. Hence the banana cultivators get a better profit than that of previous years.

Comparing to small, medium and large area cultivators the ratio of wetland area possessed by small cultivators is less and that is more to large area cultivators. Net cultivated area of total possessed area, banana cultivated area of net cultivated area are also high for large cultivators and least for small cultivators.

Considering the small area cultivators 94.60% of total plants gets for harvesting instead of 94.12% in medium and 96.44% in large area cultivators Rs. 70.06 is spent for the production of single bunch is small area while Rs.56.55 and Rs. 65.39 in medium and large area respectively. Average weight in Kg is 7.26, 7.30 and 7.50 and expenditure of cultivation and harvesting/Kg is Rs.9.65, Rs. 7.75 and Rs.8.72 for small, medium and large area cultivators respectively. Income/Kg is Rs. 15.37, Rs.15.64 and Rs. 14.70 for small, medium and large area cultivators while the profit is Rs. 5.72, Rs. 7.89 and Rs. 5.58 respectively for the same category.

Chapter 4

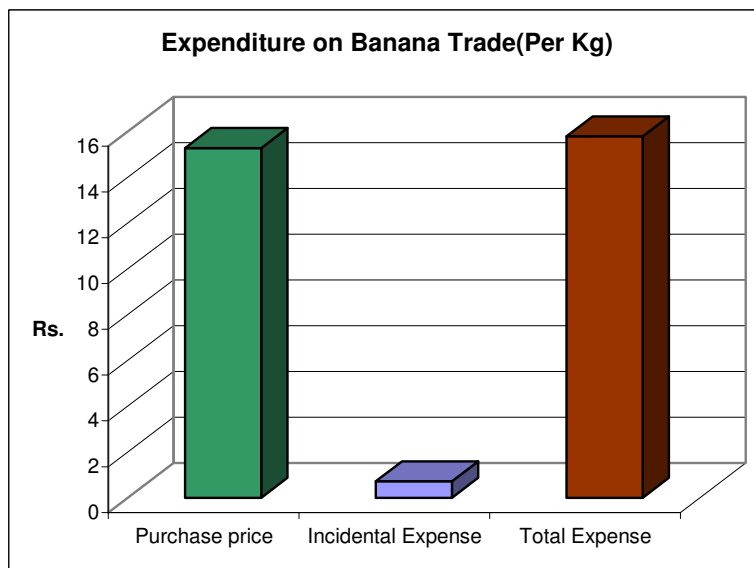

Details of Banana Trade

In each taluk, three market centers are selected for the market study. The banana traders are classified into wholesale dealers, retail dealers and agents. Besides these, small scale units producing value added products using these produce as raw materials are also selected for the study. There is some variation in the numbers due to lack of some catagorey. Details of total commodities traded, the price of buying and selling, incidental expenses etc are collected by visiting these traders once in two months. The number of traders selected from each talukis shown below.
